

SUBSTITUTE ABSTRACT

A joint assembly for joining a filiform element to a connection element has a tube fitted on an end section of the filiform element and formed with an eye for the connection element. The filiform element consists of a single composite round strand. The tube and the connection are bonded together along continuous side contacting surfaces.